A DAY IN THE FUTURE

Times are changing along with the people, life styles, occupations, careers, cultures and everything that normally makes up our world. We can never know or predict what the future brings or where we are headed. So what does the future have for us.

There are going to be more change. Our population will increase a lot of various things will change our world will give a pollution on an uncontrolled level. It

It has been predicted that there will be more use of ~~the~~ technology, i.e., a lot of things like cars will be programmed and auto, when you will get in and tell your car where to go, and it will drive you there. You won't even have to lay a finger on it.

At any rate we need to start preparing and working, doing things now to start the future in a good way. We are the future they only ones who can make it a good and a better place to live.

A lot of people are not sure if the future can beat the present, is there even anything left to invent, is there any new invention that is going to be improvements to existing ones? Like robots as we know them were created in the early 1950s. As they world grows so new things happens. There will be more inventions invent things that will save our planet (earth). What we do need all inventing to save people lives, save cultures. There will be ~~a~~ a lot of things that will be created over time hopefully.

This world is much, much smaller than we thought it was to be. We go through a mass of various moments. The world is so little, so fragile. Yet the future of our world depends on ~~the~~ our actions and how active we are working hard to ~~keep~~ keep it moving. This world is in our hands now. What are going to do to help it grow and not let it ~~die~~ die in our generation.

The future goes one day at a time.
So we have to make use every ~~the~~ ~~next~~ moments. The way we show up for our lives today and tomorrow has an enormous effect on who we will be and what we will be ~~experiences~~ experiencing years from now. If we can remain fully engaged in the day at hand, enjoying it ~~at~~ and what it has to offer and putting our energy to it into make most of it, we will find out that we perfectly ready and capable to handle our future and whatever it brings.

And ~~our~~ actions, work, energy brings they power ~~and~~ ~~to~~ to move well in life.

Commentary: This piece was written under timed conditions, as it was one of the May assessments that we used as part of our grade allocation process. Student A has interpreted the task almost as a piece of journalistic commentary on what the future holds for us. Whilst this is in itself quite an imaginative interpretation of the task, her choice of format didn't really capitalise on her strengths (as exemplified in earlier work done throughout the year). Her piece was full of interesting insight and content, but it didn't showcase her ability in using language and structure to engage the reader.
